First Banner-Kronold Concert.

Bloomfield is to be congratulated on the enterprise that enables its diffeens to enjoy such exquisite music as it was our privilege to listen to last Tuesday evening. This was the first of the two concerts of high class chamber music presented by the Jarvie Memorial Library under the direction of Mr. Hans Kronold, the noted 'cellist, Besides Mr Kronold there are in the string quartette

Mr. Michael Banner, first violin, Mr. Richard Poltman, second violin, and Mr. his own instrument, understanding sometimes prominent, sometimes retiring-in carrying out the idea of the composer. The audience of about 300 might be described as "sympathetic," very attentive and enthusiastic; in fact, all the artists were recalled after every number, thus doubling the programme; but with such delightful music, comfortable seats and pleasant surroundings it was impossible for any one to become

The first number on the programme, the 'American Quartette," by Dvorak, one of the greatest living composers, was preceded by a few explanatory femarks by Mr. Kronold, He said that the composer on a visit to America had been impressed by the barbaric rythm and peculiar melodic turns of the planta-Athley is recovering fom a serious tion songs of the Southern negro, and with his genius for improvization had woven a very interesting composition, repeatedly bringing out the original theme in a new form and dress. Listenlog to the different movements one might easily imagine some romantic scene of plantation life, moonlight on the Mississippl and the soft shuffing of the slave dancing and other typical Southern scenes, "Another point of interest," said Mr. Kronold, "was that Mr. Banner had studied for three years under Dvorak and had first played the composition with him when it was in manuscript."

This and the other numbers by the quartette were received with hearty applause. The variations from the "Emperor's Quartette" (the national Austrian bymn), Haydn and "Traumerie," Schuman, seemed to particularly please the audience. The solos of both Mr Kronold and Mr. Banner were received with prolonged applause and each responded with an encore. Mr. Banner layed with an intense poetle fervor and l Mr. Kronold certainly proved bimself the prince of 'cellists. These two solos

Mr. Stephens is certainly a fine was visited Friday night by Grand Re- plantst. There is in him a reserve power that we would be glad to see him exhibit in some great composition at the April concert. Last, but not least of the attractions at this spiendid concert, was the singing of Mrs. Elizabeth Schaup. the new soprano of the Westminster quartette. To quote the words of a musical critic in the audience, Westminster Church has had some mighty good soprance, but it never had a better one than Mrs. Schaup." She was graceful, pleasing, perfectly self possessed and evidently at home on the concert platform. The power and range of her voice were a revelation to those who had beard her only in the church quartette. In her two numbers and an encore she acquitted herself most admirably. Her singing evidently gave the audience great pleasure and she was heartily applauded. She was ably assisted by her teacher, Professor Pizzarelio of New York, who kindly volunteered his services for this occasion. Mr. Pizzarello may well be proud of his accomplished pupil and Westmineter Church is to be congratulated in having secured her for its quartette.

The next Banner-Kronold concert will be given Thursday evening, April 7. We have no besitation in saying that those who fall to hear this finest of string quartettes will miss a rare treat. One toes not need to have a "finely cultivated musical taste" to enjoy such exquistie rendering of the world's best
